I. Background

On March 27, 2020, the President signed into law the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security (CARES) Act which, among other things, created the Paycheck Protection Program (PPP) to facilitate lending to small businesses affected by the outbreak of COVID-19 and imposition of associated containment measures (COVID event). Although the CARES Act specified that the PPP would end on June 30, 2020, it was later extended to August 8, 2020.¹ On December 27, 2020, the President signed into law the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2021 (Appropriations Act), which further extended the PPP to March 31, 2021.² The Appropriations Act also created “PPP second draw loans,” which are substantially similar to the PPP loans that have been made to date.³

Regulation O sets forth quantitative and qualitative requirements for loans made by a bank⁴ to its directors, executive officers, and principal shareholders, as well as to any companies owned by such persons (collectively, insiders).⁵ Regulation O also sets forth procedural and recordkeeping requirements for loans by banks to their insiders. These requirements normally would apply to PPP loans made by banks to the small businesses owned by their insiders. In some cases, the restrictions in Regulation O could delay or entirely prohibit a bank from making a PPP loan to such a business. This could be particularly challenging in small communities where bank insiders often own small businesses and there are few alternative lenders.

⁴ Sections 22(g) and 22(h), and Regulation O, apply to all banks that are members of the Federal Reserve System. Other federal law subjects federally insured state non-member banks and insured savings associations to sections 22(g) and 22(h) in the same manner and to the same extent as if they were member banks. 12 U.S.C. 1828(j) (non-member banks); 12 U.S.C. 1468(b) (savings associations); 12 CFR 337.3 (state non-member banks and state savings associations); 12 CFR 31.2 (national banks and federal savings associations). Accordingly, any reference to “bank” in this notice applies to all member banks and institutions subject to sections 22(g) and 22(h) in the same manner and to the same extent as member banks.

⁵ See generally 12 CFR part 215.

On April 17, 2020, the Board issued an exception to section 22(h) of the Federal Reserve Act⁶ and the corresponding provisions of Regulation O for PPP loans made to insiders that would not be prohibited from receiving a PPP loan under the Small Business Administration (SBA) lending restrictions (original IFR).⁷ The exception was intended to facilitate lending by banks to a broad range of small businesses within their communities, consistent with applicable law and safe and sound banking practices. The exception applied only to PPP loans made by June 30, 2020, the original date on which the PPP was set to expire. The Board extended the exception after Congress extended the PPP.⁸

The Board received a dozen comments in response to the IFRs it issued in April and July from one trade association, several small businesses, and several individuals. Most of the comments expressed support for the Board's relief, indicating that it would bolster the effectiveness of the PPP in providing support to small businesses. Several raised issues related to the terms and administration of the PPP. One commenter asserted that no bank executives should receive loans from their banks in excess of $15,000 because executives could take advantage of their banks to the detriment of depositors.

In response to comments about the terms and administration of the PPP, the Board notes that the SBA is the agency responsible for setting forth the requirements and administering the program. Any comments concerning those matters are properly addressed to the SBA. Regarding one commenter's suggestion that no executive should be able to borrow more than $15,000 from its banks because executives could exert undue influence and cause harm to a bank, the Board notes that PPP loans have standardized terms and are fully guaranteed as to principal and interest by the U.S. government. Accordingly, a bank may not amend the terms of a PPP loan to be unduly favorable to an executive and the bank is unlikely to suffer a loss because of the loan guarantee. The Board also notes that the relief only extends to insiders who would not be prohibited from receiving a PPP loan by the SBA's lending restrictions, which currently prohibit an "officer" from receiving a PPP loan from his or her bank.⁹

The Board is issuing this interim final rule to extend the exception to PPP loans made through March 31, 2021, and to PPP second draw loans.

II. The Interim Final Rule

Section 22(h) authorizes the Board to adopt, by regulation, exceptions to the definition of "extension of credit" in section 22(h) for transactions that "pose minimal risk."¹⁰ Therefore, the Board may except PPP loans and PPP second draw loans from the restrictions in section 22(h) and the corresponding provisions of Regulation O upon a determination that such loans pose minimal risk.

The Board determined in the original IFR that PPP loans pose minimal risk.¹¹ Among other things, this determination relieved member banks from ensuring that PPP loans made to certain insiders complied with the qualitative, quantitative, and procedural requirements set forth in section 22(h) and Regulation O. The Appropriations Act did not change any of the features of PPP loans on which the Board relied in the original IFR to determine that PPP loans pose minimal risk. Moreover, under the Appropriations Act, PPP second draw loans have the same features as PPP loans, except that fewer borrowers are eligible for PPP second draw loans as for PPP loans.¹² Accordingly, for the same reasons cited in the original IFR, the Board has ⁹ 13 CFR 120.110 (prohibiting an "Associate" of a lender from receiving a loan made by the lender pursuant to section 7(a) of the Small Business Act); 13 CFR 120.10 (defining "Associate of a Lender" to include "an officer").

¹⁰ 12 U.S.C. 375b(9)(D)(ii).

¹¹ 85 FR 22346.

¹² For example, only borrowers who already have received a PPP loan may obtain a PPP second draw loan. PPP Second draw loans also are only available to employers with 300 or fewer employees. Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2021, H.R. 133, 116th Cong. section 311.

determined that PPP loans and PPP second draw loans appear to pose minimal risk to bank safety and soundness.¹³

SBA lending restrictions continue to apply to certain PPP loans and PPP second draw loans that also would be subject to section 22(h) and the corresponding provisions of Regulation O.¹⁴ Excepting loans that would be prohibited by the SBA lending restrictions from the requirements of section 22(h) and the corresponding provisions in Regulation O would not achieve any meaningful regulatory purpose. Excepting these loans from one regime and not the other also may create confusion because some lenders may mistakenly interpret an exception under one regime to extend to both regimes. Accordingly, the exception continues to apply only for insiders that would not be prohibited from receiving a PPP loan or PPP second draw loan by the SBA lending restrictions.

This interim final rule does not except a PPP loan or PPP second draw loan from other restrictions that may apply to the loan, including section 22(g) of the Federal Reserve Act or section 215.5 of Regulation O.¹⁵ This determination also does not affect application of SBA lending restrictions to a PPP loan or PPP second draw loan. The SBA has stated that “[f]avoritism by [a PPP] [l]ender in processing time or prioritization of [a] director’s or equity holder’s PPP application is prohibited.”¹⁶ The Board will administer the interim final rule accordingly.

Question 1: Are there any additional terms or conditions that should apply to the exception? Why?

Question 2: Based on the experience with the PPP program, what, if any, terms or conditions for PPP second draw loans would make it unreasonable for such loans to be exempted from the requirements of section 22(h)?

III. Administrative Law Matters

A. Administrative Procedure Act

The Board is issuing the interim final rule without prior notice and the opportunity for public comment and the delayed effective date ordinarily prescribed by the Administrative Procedure Act (APA).¹⁷ Pursuant to section 553(b)(B) of the APA, general notice and the opportunity for public comment are not required with respect to a rulemaking when an “agency for good cause finds (and incorporates the finding and a brief statement of reasons therefor in the rules issued) that notice and public procedure thereon are impracticable, unnecessary, or contrary to the public interest.”¹⁸

The Board believes that the public interest is best served by implementing the interim final rule immediately in light of the short timeframe for execution of the renewed PPP mandated by the Appropriations Act. Accordingly, the Board finds that there is good cause consistent with the public interest to issue the rule without advance notice and comment.¹⁹

The APA also requires a 30-day delayed effective date, except for (1) substantive rules which grant or recognize an exemption or relieve a restriction; (2) interpretative rules and statements of policy; or (3) as otherwise provided by the agency for good cause.²⁰ Because the rules relieve a restriction by providing an exception to the definition of “extension of credit” in section 22(h) and Regulation O, the interim final rule is exempt from the APA’s delayed effective date requirement.²¹

¹⁹ 5 U.S.C. 553(b)(B); 553(d)(3).

²⁰ 5 U.S.C. 553(d).

²¹ 5 U.S.C. 553(d)(1).

While the Board believes that there is good cause to issue the rule without advance notice and comment and with an immediate effective date, the Board is interested in the views of the public and requests comment on all aspects of the interim final rule.

B. Paperwork Reduction Act

The Paperwork Reduction Act (44 U.S.C. 3501–3521) (PRA) states that no agency may conduct or sponsor, nor is the respondent required to respond to, an information collection unless it displays a currently valid OMB control number. On June 15, 1984, OMB delegated to the Board authority under the PRA to approve and assign OMB control numbers to collections of information conducted or sponsored by the Board, as well as the authority to temporarily approve a new collection of information without providing opportunity for public comment if the Board determines that a change in an existing collection must be instituted quickly and that public participation in the approval process would defeat the purpose of the collection or substantially interfere with the Board’s ability to perform its statutory obligation.

This interim final rule does not contain any collections of information subject to the PRA.

C. Regulatory Flexibility Act

The Regulatory Flexibility Act (RFA)²² requires an agency to consider whether the rules it proposes will have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities.²³ The RFA applies only to rules for which an agency publishes a general notice of proposed rulemaking pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 553(b). As discussed previously, consistent with section 553(b)(B) of the APA, the Board has determined for good cause that general notice and opportunity for public comment are unnecessary, and therefore the Board is not issuing a notice of proposed rulemaking. Accordingly, the Board has concluded that the RFA’s requirements relating to initial and final regulatory flexibility analysis do not apply.

²² 5 U.S.C. 601 et seq.

²³ Under regulations issued by the SBA, a small entity includes a depository institution, bank holding company, or savings and loan holding company with total assets of $600 million or less and trust companies with total assets of $41.5 million or less. See 13 CFR 121.201.

Nevertheless, the Board seeks comment on whether, and the extent to which, the interim final rule would affect a significant number of small entities.

D. Riegle Community Development and Regulatory Improvement Act of 1994

Pursuant to section 302(a) of the Riegle Community Development and Regulatory Improvement Act (RCDRIA),²⁴ in determining the effective date and administrative compliance requirements for new regulations that impose additional reporting, disclosure, or other requirements on insured depository institutions (IDIs), the federal banking agencies must consider, consistent with the principle of safety and soundness and the public interest, any administrative burdens that such regulations would place on depository institutions, including small depository institutions, and customers of depository institutions, as well as the benefits of such regulations. In addition, section 302(b) of RCDRIA requires new regulations and amendments to regulations that impose additional reporting, disclosures, or other new requirements on IDIs generally to take effect on the first day of a calendar quarter that begins on or after the date on which the regulations are published in final form, with certain exceptions, including for good cause.²⁵ The Board believes that the public interest is best served by implementing the interim final rule immediately. As discussed in the original IFR, the COVID event has disrupted economic activity in the United States and other countries. The magnitude and persistence of the COVID event on the economy remain uncertain. In light of the substantial disruptions in the economy, and the likelihood that this interim final rule would help ameliorate those disruptions by promoting lending to small businesses, the Board finds good cause exists under section 302 of RCDRIA to publish this interim final rule with an immediate effective date.

As such, the interim final rule will be effective immediately on publication.

Nevertheless, the Board seeks comment on RCDRIA.

²⁵ 12 U.S.C. 4802.

E. Use of Plain Language

Section 722 of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act²⁶ requires the federal banking agencies to use plain language in all proposed and final rules published after January 1, 2000. The Board has sought to present the interim final rule in a simple and straightforward manner. The Board invites comments on whether there are additional steps it could take to make the rule easier to understand. For example:

- Have we organized the material to suit your needs? If not, how could this material be better organized?
- Are the requirements in the regulation clearly stated? If not, how could the regulation be more clearly stated?
- Does the regulation contain language or jargon that is not clear? If so, which language requires clarification?
- Would a different format (grouping and order of sections, use of headings, paragraphing) make the regulation easier to understand? If so, what changes to the format would make the regulation easier to understand?
- What else could we do to make the regulation easier to understand?
