History and Description of the Remains

At an unknown date, human remains representing, at minimum, one individual were removed from an unknown site in Arizona. The human remains were identified by a label reading "Indian Thigh from the Petrified Forest, Ariz." The human remains appear to have been part of a large donation to the Department of Anthropology, University of South Florida, from a local museum at an unknown date. The human remains consist of fragments of a left femur and right tibia that have been attached with a metal screw. Examination found that the human remains represent an adult of indeterminate sex. No known individual was identified. No associated funerary objects are present.

Based on geographical, archeological, oral tradition, and historical lines of evidence, as well as expert opinion, the Hopi Tribe of Arizona and the Zuni Tribe of the Zuni Reservation, New Mexico are culturally affiliated with the human remains.

Determinations made by the Department of Anthropology, University of South Florida

Officials of the Department of Anthropology, University of South Florida have determined that:

- Pursuant to 25 U.S.C. 3001(9), the human remains described in this notice represent the physical remains of one individual of Native American ancestry.
- Pursuant to 25 U.S.C. 3001(2), there is a relationship of shared group identity that can be reasonably traced between the Native American human remains and the Hopi Tribe of Arizona and the Zuni Tribe of the Zuni Reservation, New Mexico.

Additional Requestors and Disposition
