SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:
Section 22007 provides $2.2 billion for financial assistance for producers determined to have experienced discrimination in the Department of Agriculture’s farm lending programs prior to January 1, 2021.

When USDA commits acts of discrimination, it not only hurts the individuals and entities directly impacted, it also breaks a trust with those directly affected and the communities of which they are part. This program provides USDA the ability to provide financial assistance for those who have been harmed in USDA’s farm lending programs, but more fundamentally is about providing USDA the tools to rebuild that trust by directly acknowledging the wrongs that have been committed and taking concrete actions to offset those wrongs. It is critical that USDA restore and maintain the trust of individuals and communities where trust has been broken. A trusting and mutually supportive relationship between agricultural producers and USDA is essential to a safe and secure food supply chain and our nation’s ability to produce food, feed, and fiber that is key to our daily lives and the US economy. USDA is seeking input from individuals, stakeholder organizations, and others on the options for implementation of this provision.

In doing so, USDA also aims to continue to demonstrate its commitment to upholding civil rights and making progress towards establishing and maintaining trust with agricultural producers.

The purpose of this notice is to request information and input on how USDA should implement this transformative authority. The input received relating to implementation of this program may inform future USDA equity activities.

Specifically, USDA is requesting public comment on the following issues and on other implementation issues that are not included on this list.

Issues for Consideration:

The first issue in implementing section 22007 is the identification of those who are eligible for financial assistance. By the terms of the statute, relief under this provision is for “farmers, ranchers, or forest landowners determined to have experienced discrimination prior to January 1, 2021, in Department of Agriculture farm lending programs.” USDA specifically requests input from the public on this issue, including on questions such as:

- How should USDA identify those who have experienced discrimination under the USDA farm loan programs?
- What kind of documentation or evidence should be submitted in support of a determination of discrimination?

The second issue in implementing section 22007 is for those determined eligible, what factors should be considered in determining the amount and type of financial assistance provided. Under section 22007, “the amount of financial assistance provided to a recipient may be not more than $500,000, as determined to be appropriate based on any consequences experienced from the discrimination.” USDA specifically requests input from the public on this issue, including on questions such as:

- Should USDA attempt to estimate only economic losses or also non-economic losses of those who have suffered discrimination in USDA farm loan programs when calculating the amount of financial assistance provided? Alternatively, should USDA apply a fixed, uniform formula for calculating the amount of financial assistance provided? In any case, how should that calculation be done?
- Should previous payments received for past claims of discrimination be considered in determining financial assistance available under section 22007?
- Are there forms of non-monetary equitable relief that can be used in conjunction with the financial assistance provided under section 22007 for those who have experienced discrimination and who continue to farm or continue to participate in USDA farm loan programs?
• How, if at all, should USDA consider the recency of the discrimination as determined by the Secretary when determining appropriate level of financial assistance?

The third issue concerns the administration of the financial assistance program, including the role of the third-party entity (or entities) versus the role of USDA, selection of the third-party entity (or entities), and key components relating to the process of determining delivery of financial assistance. Section 22007 provides that the “program shall be administered through 1 or more qualified nongovernmental entities selected by the Secretary subject to standards set and enforced by the Secretary.” USDA specifically requests input from the public on this issue, including on questions such as:

• What specific functions should the third-party entity (or entities) perform in assisting USDA in delivering financial assistance provided for under section 22007 to those who suffered discrimination under the USDA farm loan programs?

• What criteria should USDA use in the selection of the third-party entity (or entities)?

• What guidance should USDA provide to the selected entity (or entities)?

The fourth issue is the linkage or leveraging, if any, between the financial assistance provided in this program and other USDA programs. USDA specifically requests input from the public on this issue, including on questions such as:

• How should USDA use programs, funding, financial support, and other authorities, in conjunction with section 22007 financial assistance, to provide support for those who have experienced discrimination under the USDA farm loan programs?
