FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Mark Kumagai, Associate Executive Director for Engineering Sciences, U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, 5 Research Place, Rockville, MD 20850; telephone: (301) 987–2234; email: mkumagai@cpsc.gov.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: CPSC provides critical public safety and law enforcement services protecting the public from unreasonable risks of injury or death associated with the use of the thousands of types of consumer products under the agency’s jurisdiction. Deaths, injuries, and property damage from consumer product incidents cost the nation more than $1 trillion annually. CPSC uses a variety of approaches to achieve its mission. Among the agency’s tools, CPSC promulgates regulations and issues guidance and interpretations concerning the safety of consumer products. Regulations and other practices that do not reasonably advance safety, but instead promote unscientific ideological agendas, create unnecessary burdens and costs, restrict consumer choice, or reduce competition, entrepreneurship, and innovation—and thereby restrain the American economy—should generally be eliminated or modified.

The Commission encourages members of the public—including consumers, manufacturers, retailers, potential market entrants, and others—to comment on ways to reduce burdens and costs of its existing rules, regulations, guidance, interpretations, or practices without increasing the risk of death or injury to consumers.

The Commission requests information and data in support of each suggestion. To submit your ideas and comments, please follow the instructions in the ADDRESSES section of this document.<sup>1</sup>
